

TECHNISYS RAISED $50 MILLION TO CONTINUE EMPOWERING BANKS WITH DISRUPTIVE TECH.

Miami, Florida - Menlo Park, California - April 30, 2019 – Technisys (technisys.com), a leading provider of an innovative digital banking software platform, announced today it has closed a $50 million Series C financing round from Riverwood Capital. The funding will enable the company to continue investing heavily in technology, expanding its product portfolio and achieving global reach to support the banking industry in its digital transformation.

In a world that is becoming digital, Technisys is providing both established banks and the new full-digital challenger banks with a highly scalable and flexible software platform that allows its customers to bring positive, smart and compelling experiences to their increasingly demanding digital consumers.

The capital will enhance the company's capabilities throughout the United States, Canada, and Latin America, open new markets such as Europe, and increase investments in the company's market leading Cyberbank Digital and Cyberbank Core platforms. Cyberbank Digital offers a cloud-ready, Open API, highly configurable and consistently superior customer experience layer across every mode of interaction: mobile, web, kiosk, and even conversational with Alexa or Google Assistant. Cyberbank Core, the platform designed for digitally native banks offers a cloud-ready, Open API next gen core banking solution built to match the speed, configurability, and security of the most sophisticated financial institution customers globally. Both platforms leverage machine learning and other AI technologies allowing banks and fintech companies to provide smarter experiences to their customers without heavy investments.

"Technisys was purpose-built to help our financial institution customers adapt, innovate, and differentiate. Today, our solutions are live in 15 countries with over 50 customers, including Brightside by ATB, HSBC, Banco Itaú, Banco Falabella, Banco Macro, Banco Original, Davivienda, Diners Club and Veloe by Elopár, among others. We are humbled by the trust our customers place in us, and excited by the massive global opportunity ahead to continually provide the building blocks necessary to win in this rapidly changing market," said Miguel Santos, Company founder and CEO. "Banks will need to differentiate through their customer experience, offering a holistic service that is device agnostic, achieving the best time-to-market when launching new services and anticipating their customer needs," he added.

"We have followed the Technisys journey for several years and are impressed with the software platform the Company has built in order to help global financial institutions offer digitally native financial products," said Francisco Alvarez Demalde, co-Founder and Managing Partner of Riverwood Capital. In addition, highlights Alex Porto, Vice President at Riverwood Capital and Technisys Board Member, "We are very excited to back and support this management team on their mission to rethink digital banking". Riverwood joins existing investors Alta Ventures, Kaszek Ventures, Oria Capital and Endeavor Catalyst.

This investment will let the company continue towards its objective of creating winner digital banking experiences with just a few clicks. Technisys' fullstack digital banking solution constitutes a powerful launching platform for full digital banks and will be key for established banks to effectively transform, leveraging the ecosystem while allowing them to differentiate, empowering innovators to create new digital banking experiences in record time.
